You are invited to attend the Community Prevention Initiative \(CPI\) Prevention Extension No-Cost Workshop, "From Risk to Resilience: Inside Out Prevention."

Training Description:

How can you promote the healthy development of young people, even those already experiencing problems? This training shifts the focus of prevention from mitigating risk factors to tapping protective factors that enhance youth resilience. Training topics include an overview of the research base, identification of personal assets identified with resilience, examination of the resilience process, and an exploration of prevention strategies that tap youth resilience. Participants will have an opportunity to apply strategies to their circumstances.

Trainer:

Amanda Montgomery has been a leader in the field of prevention for over 15 years. She is a contributing developer and author of three separate programs that are recipients of the NASADAD Exemplary Substance Abuse Prevention Award. The Committed program models have been replicated across the state and nation with over 10,000 traditional and non-traditional youth from 50 diverse community settings and locations. Amanda's work spans prevention to mental health treatment by providing oversight to integrated care supported by the Mental Health Services Act. Her expertise includes capacity building on environmental prevention, evaluation/data collection, strategic planning, youth engagement, and community change models.
